

Safeguarding Adults in Sport

Encouraging people to participate in sport or physical activity has countless benefits, including helping a person feel less isolated and promoting a sense of belonging. Anybody involved in organising, delivering or supervising sports activities has a responsibility for safeguarding. This course will help them understand what safeguarding is and, by recognising the indicators of safeguarding concerns, challenge and report any practice they feel has the potential to put an adult at risk. Safeguarding Adults in Sport is endorsed by UK Athletics.
